10,000 ACRES YEARLY
TO REPLACE TIMBER

"Ohio should plant 10,000 acres of forest a year in attempting to replace the annual timber cut of the State," says Edmund Seerest, state forester, of the Ohio Experiment Station at Wooster.

"Even at this rate of planting it would be many years before the acreage devoted to reforestation would yield lumber enough to replace the annual cut."

"The annual timber cut of the State is approximately 250,000,000 board feet."

"Ohio has at least 1,000,000 acres of waste and idle lands on which forests should be planted to complement the lumber production of the 3,000,000 acres of native woodland in supplying our timber wants. The State could well devote 5,000,000 acres of land to forests without interfering with agricultural production."

will begin to pick them off, but since they cannot eat them down to the roots the sprouts will continue to grow and supply green material. This frame can be moved from place to place in the yard, and in this way different parts cultivated.

The yard should be stirred or spaded up frequently, if not in sod, in order to keep it in the best condition. This will not only tend to keep down any odors which might arise, but also allow the droppings to be absorbed into the soil more readily, and, therefore, keep the yard in better condition for the hens.

Although it is necessary to keep the hens confined to their yard most of the time, it is sometimes possible to let them out where they may range upon the lawn for an hour or so in the evening when some one can be at hand to watch them or at certain seasons of the year to allow them to run in the garden plot. This will be enjoyed greatly by the hens and will be very beneficial to them.

Changing the ground upon which poultry run is the best means of controlling intestinal worms in poultry, because the worms or eggs of the worm will stay over in the ground from one season to another, especially if the poultry is overcrowded.

POULTRY

GOOD FENCES ARE REQUIRED

Fowls Running at Large Destroy Gardens and Flower Beds—Confine Them in Yards.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Confine the back-yard flock; otherwise the hens will stray into neighbors' yards and gardens, where they may cause damage and are almost sure to cause ill feeling. The yard should be inclosed by a board or wire fence. Wire fencing is preferable, as it is cheaper and the hens are less likely to fly over it. Say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. If cats prove troublesome where one is raising chickens, it may be necessary to cover the top of the yard with wire also. A board should not be used at the top of a wire fence, as this gives the hens a visible place to alight and tends to teach them to fly over.

A 5-foot fence is high enough for most conditions, but if the hens show a tendency to fly over such a fence the flight feathers of one wing should be clipped. Leghorns need a 6-foot fence. The larger the yard which can be provided the better the hens will do, as it not only gives them greater opportunity to exercise, but also makes it possible to maintain a sod on the yard. In most cases not enough land will be available so that a sod can be maintained.

If the yard is fairly large, it can be divided into two parts and green crops, such as oats, wheat, rye, or Dwarf Essex rape allowed to start in one yard while the hens are confined to the other. The green crops should be sown very thick, and the following quantities will be found satisfactory for a yard 25 by 30 feet: Wheat, 2½ pounds; oats, 1½ pounds; rye, 3¼ pounds; rape, 5 ounces. When the growing stuff reaches a height of 3 to 4 inches the hens can be turned upon it and the other yard be similarly sown.

Where it is inadvisable to divide the yard it is possible to keep a supply of green stuff growing by using a wooden frame 2 or 3 inches high covered with 1-inch-mesh wire. A frame made of 1 by 2-inch lumber, 6 feet long and 3 feet wide, with an additional piece across the center to support the wire when the hens stand on it, will be found desirable for a small yard. A part of the yard as large as this frame is spaded up and sown, the frame placed over it, and the material allowed to grow. As soon as the green sprouts reach the wire the hens

CONTROL INTESTINAL WORMS

Best Way is to Change Ground Upon Poultry Run, Especially if Fowls are Crowded.

Changing the ground upon which poultry run is the best means of controlling intestinal worms in poultry, because the worms or eggs of the worm will stay over in the ground from one season to another, especially if the poultry is overcrowded.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 20

PAUL BEFORE THE KING.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 25:1-23:32.
GOLDEN TEXT—Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept.—1 Cor. 15:20.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—1 Cor. 15.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Tells How He Came to Obey Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Before King Agrippa.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—An Appeal to Caesar.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul's Courageous Testimony Before a King.

I. Paul Before Festus (25:1-12).

As soon as Festus, the new governor, goes to Jerusalem, he is besieged with accusations against Paul, and they desire that he be brought to Jerusalem for trial, intending to lie in wait and kill him on the way. Festus refused their request, but agreed to give them an opportunity to accuse Paul if they would go down to Caesarea. They go, but are unable to prove anything against him. Festus, willing to please the Jews, proposes to send him to Jerusalem for trial. For this Paul issues a rebuke to Festus by asserting that he very well knew that he was innocent. Seeing that it was impossible to get justice before Festus, Paul makes use of his right as a Roman citizen, and appeals to Caesar. Paul well knew that to go to Jerusalem meant death, and since Festus was too much of a time-server to release him when he knew that he was innocent, he makes use of the radical step of appealing to Rome as the last resort. Festus seems to have been taken by surprise. His failure to release an innocent man had placed him in an awkward position, for he could give no explanation as to why an innocent man should go to Rome for trial. For a man to appear before Caesar would cast reflection upon Festus. He now consulted his council as to what to do, but since the Roman law gave every man the right of appeal to the emperor, there was nothing left for him to do but to grant his request.

II. Paul Before Agrippa (25:13-26:27).

1. The occasion (25:13-27). This was the visit of Agrippa and Bernice to Festus. Upon their arrival they expressed a desire to hear Paul, whereupon Festus told them of his perplexity; so it was arranged that Paul be brought before them for examination.

2. The defense (25:1-27). (1) The introduction (vv. 1-3). In this he expressed his delight that he now could speak and tell his case to one who was able to follow his line of argument, for Agrippa was an expert in questions concerning the Jews; but most of all he was now happy in that he could witness to him of the Savior and perhaps lead him into the light of God. (2) In his manner of life (vv. 4-12). This he showed had been in strictest accord with the most rigid sect of the Jews. He possessed the same hope—that of a coming Deliverer—and reminded them of the fact that formerly he was most bitterly opposed to Christ, as his zeal would prove. These facts make the change from a persecutor to an ardent advocate all the more remarkable. (3) His supernatural conversion (vv. 13-15). Jesus Christ appeared to him on the way to Damascus and revealed himself to him. (4) Jesus Christ commissioned him for his work (vv. 16-18). He was sent unto the Gentiles (a) to open their eyes, so awfully blinded; (b) to perform the blessed work of turning them from darkness to light; (c) to turn them from the power of Satan unto God; (d) that they might receive forgiveness of sins; (e) and that they might obtain an inheritance among the saints. (5) His consecration (vv. 19-23). As soon as he received his commission he obeyed. The very vigorous prosecution of his work brought him into conflict with the Jews, for which they sought to kill him. (6) The interruption by Festus (v. 24). Seeing how thoroughly in earnest Paul was, he attempted to account for it by calling him a crank, attributing it to the ravings of an unbalanced mind. (7) Paul's appeal to Agrippa (vv. 25-27). Still maintaining his courtesy, he appealed to his knowledge of the work of Jesus and of the prophets, for they have an intimate connection.

III. Agrippa Almost Persuaded (26:28-32).

Whether this answer is a contemptuous sneer or not, it is evident that his soul was unwilling to yield. Paul took Agrippa seriously. Paul's heart longed that Agrippa and all concerned would accept Christ and be saved.

"God is Love."

We never know through what divine mysteries of compensation the great Father of the universe may be carrying out His sublime plans; but those three words, "God is Love," ought to contain, to every doubting heart, the solution of all things.—Selected.

The Heritage of Peace.

Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.—John 13:27.

Richfield

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Webber and children visited at the home of Mr. Webber's uncle, John Webber, in Weymouth last Saturday evening and Sunday.

Rev. Eastman met with a serious accident with his new car last Friday. He was returning from Oberlin where he had been to get his father and mother and also was accompanied by Mrs. Latimer of Bath. It was nearly dark and the snow was very blinding. Suddenly he saw a truck in front of him. It being on the right side of the road he supposed it was going the same way he was, so he turned out to pass it. At this time the truck, which was coming toward him, crossed over to its own side of the road, which caused a collision. Rev. Eastman was badly bruised and at first it was thought some ribs were broken. The other occupants of the car were more or less bruised but no one seriously injured. The new car was badly wrecked.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bigelow and Anna and Martin Bigelow attended the Reid-Cunningham wedding in Cleveland Friday evening.

The school children entertained their parents at school Armistice Day. The Domestic Science class served lunch at noon.

Mr. Tom, our County club leader, was in town last Tuesday. He announced that both the boys and girls won the banner given for best club work done in the county. The Green township boys gave our boys a close chase and Copley and Bath girls almost tied Richfield. This week John Cowisher, Dorothy Boughton and Viola Parr go to Columbus as guests of O. S. U., being winners in their projects in their club work. Mrs. Richard Hawkins of Copley will go as chaperone.

Mrs. Rinnegar is storing her household goods that she did not sell at her sale and will make her home with her daughter in Cuyahoga Falls.

The ladies of the vicinity surprised Miss Hazel Williams last Friday afternoon by meeting at her home and tying a comforter for her.

Mr. Jones, interior decorator for the Yeager Co., Akron, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. James Kirby.

The Eastern Star ladies cleared about $20 at the election day dinner. Election day has come and gone, with results extremely satisfactory to some and disappointing to others. John Griffiths, Eugene Parker and Clare Halliwell were elected trustees; Arthur Scobie, constable; R. J. Horn, C. A. Hart and Floyd Swan, school board members; John Rockwood, treasurer; Phillip Waldo, clerk.

The Eastern Star lodge held its election last Wednesday with the following elected: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Minnie Ellis; Asst. Matron, Mrs. Blanche Bigelow; Worthy Patron, Harry Wood; Conductress, Mrs. Mabel Jolly; Asst. Conductress, Mrs. Hancock.
